

Climbing Route Closures to Protect Nesting Falcons

Falcons are nesting in the North Walls area, near the top of Alaska Highway/bottom of The Calling (area circled in orange).

To protect Peregrine Falcons, climbing routes are closed within areas outlined in red. Closed routes include Alaska Highway, The Calling, Gone Surfin', The Ron Zalko Workout, and the Astro Ledge between the top of Alaska Highway and the bottom of Gone Surfin'.

Overview of closed area

If you encounter a falcon keep your distance. If birds appear agitated, leave the area as soon as possible.

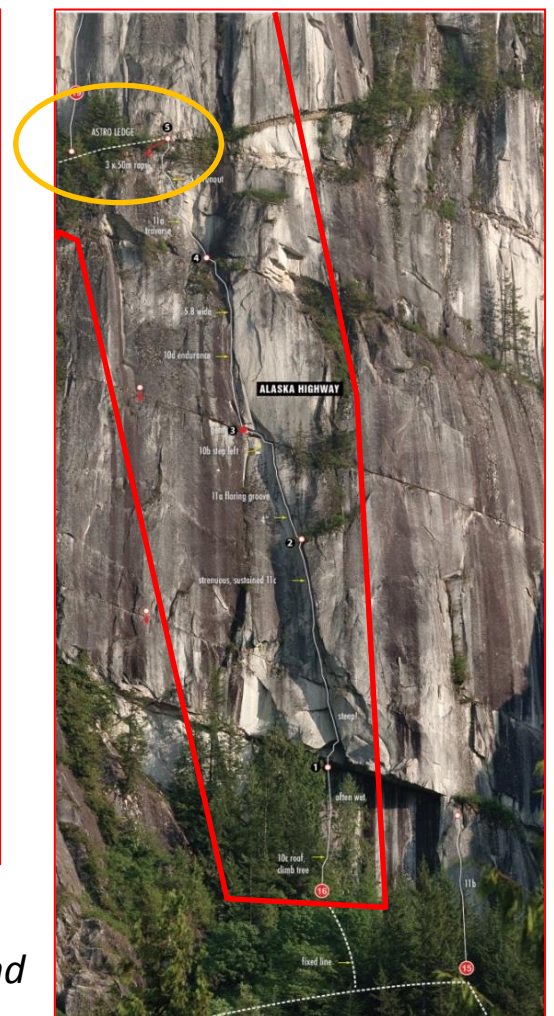

The closure will be lifted when the juveniles leave the nest area, which should occur in early July.

Climbing in closed areas could result in fines under Park Act, Park, Conservancy and Recreation Area Regulation 10(2).

Detailed view of closed routes

Images from Squamish Select, courtesy Marc Bourdon and Quickdraw Publications

Please report falcon sightings to BC Parks joanna.hirner@gov.bc.ca. Reports from climbers are essential for ensuring falcons are protected without unnecessarily limiting climbing opportunities.

Thanks for your help and cooperation!